COOPERATION START:

FACING PRIMARY CHALLENGES

Our client is an acclaimed company with a team of over 200+ strategists, designers, marketers, and developers located in the UK. They offer E-commerce solutions on a global scale and have been at the forefront of the industry for over a decade. As their business was growing, the company recognized the importance of directing their in-house team towards higher-priority projects. However, a substantial volume of urgent tasks still required attention. This led to the decision to expand the development team. At this moment our cooperation started.

From the very beginning we had the next challenges to face:

PROJECTS SCALABILITY

The client's workload grew unexpectedly, causing a shortage of resources within their existing teams.

SPECIALIZED EXPERTISE NEED

The client required specialized expertise for certain projects that their current onsite teams could not possess at that moment.

DEADLINE PRESSURES

Upcoming deadlines and time-sensitive projects strained the client's current team.

NEED IN SHORT-TERM ENGAGEMENT

Some projects did not require a long-lasting commitment but demanded intensive work for a short period.

BUDGET CONSTRAINTS

Hiring developers was cost-prohibitive for the client, due to inconsistent workload forecasted for the periods upcoming.

Considering all these factors Mobilunity Consultancy Services was a helping hand in this case. Our part-time and hourly-based engagement model of diverse experts from top-level executives to niche software engineers – perfectly matched the needs of our client.

OUR SOLUTIONS:

FLEXIBILITY AND PERFORMANCE

By offering a blend of full-time and part-time developers, Mobilunity provided tailored solutions to address each specific challenge the client faced. This approach enabled our client to maintain operational efficiency, meet project goals, and successfully navigate their evolving project landscape.

Solutions in detail:

Mobilunity pool of part-time consultants

Our vetted base of trusted consultants allowed us to quickly match experienced Magento and Drupal developers to the client's needs.

Flexible engagement

Starting from hourly involvement and does not require a long-term commitment.

Pay per hour model

Cost is based solely on the hourly rate of the dev and based on the hours worked.

Tailored schedule

Agreed work with developers in line with the project communication needs and schedule.

Transparency and clarity

At the very beginning of the search for a short term, we discuss in detail the term, the possibility of its extension and the main requirements in order to meet the client's expectations for a hundred percent.

THE TEAM:

PERFECT MATCHES FOR ANY MATTERS

In cooperation with Mobilunity, our client has built a dedicated development team specializing in Magento and Drupal technologies for back-end development. Remarkably, the Ukrainian team seamlessly integrated into the client's project within a short timeframe and has consistently collaborated with our client's in-house development department, ensuring stability and a powerful boost for their growth.

Moreover, when the client's urgent needs popped up, Mobilunity successfully solved them by engaging specialists for part-time and short-term cooperation:
